Great Crescent Brewery Plans Expansion

The Great Crescent Brewery will be expanding into a new space in Mid-Spring 2010.

Aurora, IN, January 8, 2010: The Great Crescent Brewery of Aurora, IN is expanding into a newly acquired space in the second quarter of 2010. The brewery owners, Dan and Lani Valas, decided to move the brewery to a larger space to meet the State of Indiana minimum seating requirements which would allow them to serve beer by the glass. The Great Crescent Brewery will remain a production brewery and will develop a restaurant area during this expansion. The building they have acquired through Great Crescent, LLC was originally part of the T. and J.W. Gaff & Co. distillery located in downtown Aurora, IN. The building includes 47,000 square feet and the new brewery and restaurant expansion will occupy approx 9,000 square feet on the ground floor.

Dan explains, "Since opening the brewery in November 2008 in downtown Aurora, IN we have experienced steady growth. Lani and I believe the opportunity to obtain this building and stay in the downtown area is a terrific benefit for us and the city of Aurora. There is something very unique about having a brewery close to the customers. As we continue to develop a growing consumer base we really appreciate interacting with the customers and it continually rededicates us to provide the best experience possible. Our goal is to become the "local favorite" and we will accomplish that by continuing to provide fresh, high quality, hand-crafted beer."
